February 28th - Pink Shirt Day at KPES

Years ago, a new student at a rural high school in Nova Scotia was teased for wearing a pink polo shirt. After witnessing this event, two students, David Shepherd and Travis Price, decided to take a stand. They spread the word through Twitter, and Facebook encouraging peers to wear pink to school. They even purchased pink t-shirts and handed them out to students on their way to class! Before they knew it, a SEA OF PINK had swept through the halls of their high school, and a PINK DAY was born.

On February 28th, let's wear pink to not only show that we can STAND UP against bullying, but to remind ourselves that STANDING OUT can be a GOOD thing! Let's celebrate what makes us unique and be proud that there is no one else in this world like us! It will surely be a day of PINK PANTHER PRIDE!
