NOTE:

- January Demonstration of Learning Week Reminder Please leave Friday, Jan. 27th, free of assessments/demonstration of learning to accommodate potential weather events. In preparation of the assessment/demonstration of learning schedule, schools need to double up on the first day of the week, Jan. 23rd, and will adjust accordingly and double up if schools are cancelled due to inclement weather throughout the week.
- 2. "Demonstration of Learning Week" is a period at the end of each semester when students can show evidence of their learning from the term through a variety of flexible assessment practices, as determined by the classroom teacher. While a summative assessment is a possibility, teachers are encouraged to think of ways to support students in authentic demonstrations of what they have learned with various assessments such as final projects, conferences, exercises, exit interviews, videos, or presentations, to name a few. This week will allow students to attend school according to a schedule that will be conducive to completing a final assessment to finish the course, if applicable.
- 3. "Course or Credit Recovery", although assigned to one week in January/June, can begin at any point in the school year. This period formalizes a commonly used best practice of supporting students by providing students with an opportunity to bridge a learning gap and complete some extra learning (and subsequent demonstration of that learning) so that they might attain a credit or course completion. This strategy is designed for those students who are willing to put in a little extra time and a little extra learning to finish the course successfully. This is also an opportunity to review learning for students who may have received an INC at an earlier reporting period. is extended to include Assessment/Demonstration of Learning week to provide flexibility and support learners
