Family Fun Project:

Gingerbread Person

Dear Families,

This week our class is beginning an author study of Jan Brett. Jan Brett is well known for her story “The Gingerbread Baby”, another version of the famous tale of a gingerbread cookie who suddenly comes to life and leads the other characters on a wild goose chase through the town.

This project is for the entire family to enjoy! I am providing your child with a large brown cutout of a gingerbread person. You and your child are to decorate the gingerbread boy OR girl using anything you can find around your home. Some suggestions for materials to use might be yarn, buttons, construction paper, felt, markers, googly eyes, cotton balls, etc. There is also a writing activity to be completed by your child to describe their Gingerbread person. Remember to print neatly, use finger spaces, put uppercase letters to start and stop marks to end your sentences. Finally, remember to use “order words” to organize your writing (first, next, then, after that, finally)

Be creative and have fun completing this project with your child. I can't wait to see your family's gingerbread creation on:

Happy decorating!
