Media literacy is applying "critical thinking" to messages being sent by the mass media.

Apply the following media literacy questions to a poster.

Google “A Call to Volunteer” and choose one image of a poster with that title.

Although some of the following questions are easier to answer than others, attempt to answer each question in full sentences. Send me your responses through Office 365 with a link to the poster that you chose.

1. What is the message?
2. Who is the intended audience?
3. What does the poster tell you that you already know?
4. What does the poster tell you that you did not already know?
5. Who is sending the message? (age/gender/race/nationality)
6. What does the poster tell you about the writer's/producer's views and beliefs?
7. Whose voices and positions are being expressed?
8. Who benefits from the message?
9. Whose voices and positions are not being expressed?

Indigenous Studies Continuation of Learning June 1st - June 5th 2020

Hi/Qey everyone!

I hope you are all doing well. As I indicated in last weeks info. This would be the time or year that our Indigenous brothers and sisters would be holding Pow Wows throughout Turtle Island (Canada).

I am including a few links below that will provide you with some further information. About Pow Wows.

(At this time, the Pow Wow's that are held in New Brunswick have either been canceled or postponed due to Covid 19).

Link # 1

This link entitled "Living by the Drum" highlights the Pow Wow in Flat Bay , Newfoundland.

As I watched this video, I was happy to see some of the people who were dancing have also attended the Pow Wow in St. Mary's (Sitansisk) First Nation in Fredericton.

Link # 2

This link provides a short article about the Pow Wow.

Have a wonderful week everyone!

Stay safe 😊

Phys. Ed.	It is recommended that you complete 30 minutes of physical activity a day. Find some games you can play with your family this week. Bean Bag Toss, Horseshoes, Croquet, Bocce Ball etc. You could also take a walk, take a hike, go boating, play catch, pass a soccer ball. In the heat, getting active does not always mean being vigorous. Being in the heat can raise your heart rate faster than normal, as your body is already working hard to cool you down. The important thing is to move and not to push yourself too hard. Save your jogging or aerobic workouts for days when it is a little cooler. When outside, remember Sun Safety! Wear sunscreen and a hat. Keep hydrated. It wouldn't hurt to wear some bug spray, and remember to maintain your social distancing while enjoying the great outdoors.
Technology	Cul Tech – Try planting some herbs, green onion, lettuce, or spinach. These are things that can be planted in a garden or in a container. These can all be used in summer meal planning and can be readily accessible to you when cooking. Skilled Trades - Outdoor Maintenance Taking care of a building can be time consuming and costly. Frequent minor repairs or "maintenance" can help prevent major and often expensive damage later. Examine the outside of the building you live in. See if you can locate any minor repairs such as rotting stair or deck boards, cracked siding, loose railings, missing shingles, and insect/animal damage. If you have the ability to complete the repair then take on a project, if not make a list of tools and materials needed to fix the issue(s).
